THE suit in the Circuit court last week of McCarty vs. Hall, resulted in a hung jury. They stood ten for defendant, Hall; two for plaintiff, McCarty.

THE Keystone liniment man has been dispensing "Keystone liniment" and giving open air minstrel performances on our streets for two weeks past, much to the amusement of the African persuasion.

THE statue to General Jackson erected in the Metairie cemetery, New Orleans, was unveiled there last Tuesday with imposing ceremonies. The widow and daughter of the immortal hero were present.

THE depot question is being much agitated. We are still of the opinion that the best interests of Clarksville, and a majority of her citizens will be most regarded by the railroad, if it adheres to the location at Bradley's brickyard.

THE dead-lock in the senate is likely to prove a blessing in disguise. It is predicted the middle will end in the final defeat of Gorman for clerk, Riddleberger for sergeant-at-arms, and the ignominious defeat of Conkling and all the stalwart crowd.

THE Senate Judiciary Committee reported adversely on the nomination of Stanley Matthews as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. It is thought the senate will confirm his nomination in the face of the report.

THERE now, the Riddle's solved. Mr. George Riddle who is to enact the part of "Odipus in the Greek play of Oedipus Tyrannus," at Harvard, the last of this month, is said to be the betrothed husband of Mary Anderson.

DEPOT LOCATION.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:—The Tobacco Board of Trade seems much exercised over the location of the railroad depot. As they exhibited so much wisdom in the location of the Exchange building, they should by all means control the location of everything in the city, public and private. Therefore, in view of the superior ability of the Tobacco Board of Trade in the locating business, I beg to suggest that the Board of Mayor and Aldermen be requested to appoint them public locators, subject to the approval of said Mayor and Aldermen, whom it is believed also have superior capacity in this line, and with their permission I will take pleasure in recommending these boards jointly, to Jay Gould, who now has a large amount of locating business on hand, but like the Louisville and Nashville railroad company, thinks he knows his own business. However, when advised of the wonderful ability of these boards in this line, he will doubtless seek their aid, for what they do not know on the question of locating, is not worth knowing.

An Accident at Cherry's.

News reached the city last Tuesday morning that a young man named Booth, who works in the store of Mr. Theo. Walthall, at Cherry's Station, had been run over by the north bound passenger train, at that place, and badly injured, having his left foot cut off just at the ankle and being otherwise seriously hurt. Nobody seems to know just how the accident occurred, but it is supposed he must have slipped, while trying to board the train, and got his foot caught under the wheels. Dr. McCauley was sent for and went out and dressed his wounds. At last report he was resting comparatively easy.

MEACHAM, of the South Kentuckian.

Meacham, of a Miss Lizzie Millions, of Salvisa Mercer county, Ky., who is 16 years of age, and hasn't grown an inch since she was two years old, and to all appearance is as much of a child as she was at that age. He adds, her parents ought to start a side show there would be "Millions in it." She's of age, why don't you "take her in," and then you'd have Millions. But, perhaps, you think there's Millions in relating such tales to a credulous public, through your paper.

A Veteran Shot.

Mr. Jno. J. Thomas, who, in his time, was one of the best shots in Kentucky, replying to an invitation from Messrs. Barbour and Griffith to shoot with the Kentucky team, says:

"It is with great reluctance that I decline to be one of the Kentucky team, but it is best for the team that I should do so. I am too old (68), my eyesight has failed rapidly in the last few years, and, besides, I am entirely out of practice. I feel too much pride in Kentucky's success to endanger by my poor shooting that all the Wise Men of Hopkville, not wishing to be understood that those who are not members of the sublime order of Wise Men are fools, had assembled to escort each and every one of us to church or the lunatic asylum. The latter place I think the most suitable for us. Carriages were waiting to convey us to any portion of the city where we might want to go to after breakfast, W. P. Titus and Dr. W. D. Winslow, before leaving in the morning, on going up to the Hotel clerk and calling for their bill, to their great consternation was told that their bill would be settled by the Lodge. The same answer was given them at the livery stable. Not only them, but each and every one from Clarksville, was treated likewise. Even the toll-gates, close to Hopkville, would receive no pay from any Knight from this city. It was characteristic that every place we went to no pay would be received for anything in the way of drinking or eating, and with extreme pleasure I proclaim unto the Wise Men of the entire earth that the hospitality shown to the Clarksville Knights by their brethren of Hopkville, during their sojourn in that city, has never been equalled, if ever excelled, by any knights of olden time. With one accord, we each and every one of us can say, we hope to be able to reciprocate, and until then, Domine Vobiscum.

The Trip of the Mozart Band.

This excellent band, composed of clever colored boys from this city, returned home Monday from its excursion to Evansville and Nashville on the steamer B. H. Cooke, and express themselves as having had a very pleasant trip. The appended card of thanks will show how the music furnished by them, was appreciated by the officers and excursionists of the boat:

C. W. OWEN, Manager of Mozart Brass Band, Clarksville, Tenn., Accept for yourself and members of band my sincere thanks for the music furnished by them on a trip to Nashville and Evansville, and many wishes for its future prosperity.

Capt. Str., B. H. Cooke.

Brady, the Star route swindler, is said to be the inventor of Brady's "Big" and "Little" papers, and is to be made to swallow the whole dose.

THE WISE MEN ABROAD.

By a special invitation of Evergreen Lodge Knights of Pythias of Hopkinsville, Ky., to Cumberland Lodge No. 17 Knights of Pythias of this city, to confer the Wise Men's Degree upon about 45 members of their Lodge, the following members of the Grand Lodge of the sublime order of Wise Men of Tennessee left this city on last Saturday, some in buggies, carriages and railroad. The party consisted of J. G. Joseph, G. V. G. B. Wilson, G. C. Jno. E. Redmond, G. P. Wm. Kleeman, G. R.; Dr. P. D. Winslow, W. K. G. O. D.; W. P. Titus, Dr. N. L. Carney, J. W. Parule, W. R. Shelton, Jas. E. Mosley, Wm. Ward, Ed. Munford, Jno. S. Nodgett, H. W. Keese, H. A. Rick, R. D. Caldwell, B. M. Barksdale, T. E. McReynolds, A. F. Rawls, R. R. Clifton, J. H. Turnley, Ben Franklin and J. M. Bowling. Nothing occurred during the journey thither, except occasional rain showers. The route to Hopkinsville by pike is delightful. The farms throughout Christian county are not to be excelled by any in the state, unless in Central Kentucky, the noted blue grass country, and I question if by them. Five miles this side of Hopkinsville a committee, consisting of Knights H. H. Abernathy and Jas. L. Wahl, two of the most courteous and valiant Knights that ever drew a lance, met a portion of the Wise Men. These gentlemen came in a magnificent barouche, well accoutered, and having exchanged friendly greetings, requested Mr. J. G. Joseph to exchange carriages, which was done, arriving in Hopkinsville on or about 6:30 p. m. After being escorted to the Phoenix Hotel, we were then met by the following worthy Knights: Chas. M. Meacham, editor of the South Kentuckian; the jovial A. D. Rodgers, the bridegroom, J. K. Gant, Jr.; Dr. G. N. Campbell, Prof. J. B. Solomon, D. G. Wiley, J. C. Gant, Billy Walker, Thos. House, Long, the innkeeper Bryan Thompson, the infatigable Ben Hopper. All of the above gentlemen had become Wise Men by their visit to this city on April 16, and to whom we feel greatly indebted, for the kind invitation to confer the degree, and install the Grand Lodge of Kentucky. These generous Knights and Wise Men constituted themselves a special committee to extend to us a most hearty and sincere welcome, the equal never having been attained by human hands. After tea, we were escorted to Castle Hall and examined the grand floral decorations, prepared by the fair ladies of our sister city, Hopkinsville. The artistic skill displayed in blending the colors of the flowers, and the designs of the mottoes, showed clearly that they are no novices in the art. At 8:30 p. m. sharp, the sublime order of Wise Men went into secret convocation to initiate forty-five as good, generous and worthy citizens as any city town and hamlet boast of; all of whom, like Caesar's wife, were above suspicion. The mystic veil must here close until 11 p. m., when we were aroused from our lethargy by one of the most soul-stirring and inspiring speeches, delivered by Knight Jas. Breathitt, an exceptional Wise Man, and now a candidate for legislative honors, and we predict, if elected, that the halls of the capitol at Frankfort, Ky., will resound with his eloquence, and prove to Christian county that their representative is the wisest of them all. Brother Breathitt brought his remarks to a close by inviting us to a sumptuous banquet. Responses were made by Bros. Wilson and Joseph, after which, we repaired to the banquet at the Central Hotel to partake of the quintessence of goodly things to appease the appetite of Wise and worthy knights, and the evening was less a personage than Mr. Gas Hall; the very name of itself would in sure success of the bill of fare. The tables fairly groined with dishes and tropical fruits. The writer, not anticipating such a feast, could not do justice to the event, as we have partaken of each and every article contained on those tables would have been to prepare, like Dr. Tanner, a few days' rest, in advance. After the banquet, the order of the Wise Men repaired to the Hotel, and while we were enjoying the aroma of good cigars and conversing upon the immortality of the soul, we discovered that two o'clock in the morning had passed. We concluded, if possible, to obtain at least forty winks; in order to do so, we retired to our beds. On our awaking on the 9th, Sunday morning, and going down stairs, we were met by the Knights of the sublime order of Wise Men, not wishing to be understood that those who are not members of the sublime order of Wise Men are fools, had assembled to escort each and every one of us to church or the lunatic asylum. The latter place I think the most suitable for us. Carriages were waiting to convey us to any portion of the city where we might want to go to after breakfast, W. P. Titus and Dr. W. D. Winslow, before leaving in the morning, on going up to the Hotel clerk and calling for their bill, to their great consternation was told that their bill would be settled by the Lodge. The same answer was given them at the livery stable. Not only them, but each and every one from Clarksville, was treated likewise. Even the toll-gates, close to Hopkville, would receive no pay from any Knight from this city. It was characteristic that every place we went to no pay would be received for anything in the way of drinking or eating, and with extreme pleasure I proclaim unto the Wise Men of the entire earth that the hospitality shown to the Clarksville Knights by their brethren of Hopkville, during their sojourn in that city, has never been equalled, if ever excelled, by any knights of olden time. With one accord, we each and every one of us can say, we hope to be able to reciprocate, and until then, Domine Vobiscum.

EDITOR CHRONICLE:—A week

or ten days ago the bug was discovered on the tobacco plants in this section, and fears were entertained by many planters, that the little pests would make a clean sweep of all the beds not canvassed. I have been on the alert ever since our plants came up, visited and examined the beds every day or two, and on the 22nd of April I discovered the little devils at work on the beds, but not in sufficient numbers to insure the immediate destruction of the plants. But by the 25th, they received large reinforcements from some quarter, and were doing considerable damage to the margin of beds and we became alarmed—thought we would have to canvass or they would eat up the plants "immediately if not sooner," but fortunately the weather turned warm and the intense heat of the sun drove his bugshop off the beds, or kept him from eating except during cool, cloudy days. Plants have grown so rapidly within the past week, that the bug cannot inflict serious damage upon them. They have outgrown Mr. Bug. We scattered dry, pulverized stable manure over our beds, which hastened and stimulated the growth of the plants wonderfully—just made 'em "get up and git." I know there never was a better prospect for plants in the Clarksville district before.

The damage these little insect pests yearly inflict upon tobacco growing districts, shows conclusively what humbugs agricultural bureaus are—both State and National. Farmers know nothing about entomology, no more than the average plantation negro knows of physiology. I always thought it within the province of agricultural commissioners to investigate and study the habits of insects that destroy the farmers' crops—learn when, how and where they propagate, and suggest some means whereby their ravages may be checked. Mr. LeDue held up on tea a while and help us out down here, please. But when these erudite professors and commissioners write anything treating on entomology what they say is couched in the most pompous and pedantic language—use technical terms and scientific talk that is Greek to farmers. Evidently their object is to mystify rather than to instruct. And some of these learned gents draw enormously, besides having a hankering for high-sounding titles—L. D. W. X. Y. Z.—hit to a comet. To canvass plant beds is the only way to save them now, and the plan is original with some ingenious farmer. The spring I caught a number of the bugs and sent them to an entomologist in Cincinnati. The vital containing them was broken in its transmission through the mails, and of course the bugs were lost. I have been thinking I would try again, and send some of the little pests to Commissioner Hawkins. I would send them if I knew he would submit them to every member of the Hawkins family holding office.

Port Royal, May 6, 1881.

Several Things.

First, we have been invited yesterday to take a big dinner with Lewis Hale. "Uncle Lewis" was 68 years old, and though a bachelor does not mind telling his age. David Copperfield's "bechever" friend was not a kinder hearted man than is our host. His neighbors flocked in and we sat down to a bountiful repast. We had a pleasant time. Our friend has a great horror of owing anything. Since our acquaintance began he discovered one day, by accident, that he owed a sum which he thought had been paid many years ago. The original parties were dead, but their descendants lived. He mounted his horse in haste, and took two pairs of spears with him, one to see near and the other far off. He posted to the court house and having satisfied himself of his indebtedness made things right and felt happy. The whole affair had not out of date long years ago but he has no use for the statute of limitation.

And now we turn to a belated wedding party. Leaving the guests of the birthday feast, we post to Collinsville to find the church brilliantly lighted, flowers in the chancel, and an expectant crowd watching the door for the entrance of the happy bride party. The hour passes, and another, and still another, but no wedding. I think I had ride to the bride's home and enquire, "Here is the bride, four bridesmaids and their friends, but no news from the bridegroom and his party. Things grow a little monotonous. But ten minutes before "low twelve" we are all on the floor and the ceremony is performed. A tardy train explains it all. The bridegroom had never been married before in his life and he went clear to Nashville for his outfit and car, and was far from the station for telegrams to do any good. "All's well that ends well." Variety is indeed the spice of life.

Southside, May 6, 1881.

We see that those hospitable fellows of the Western Kentucky Press Association, which meets at Hopkinsville on the 18th, and 19th, of this month, are going to take a drive out to the beautiful Western Lunatic Asylum at that place. We wish they would invite all these low-tax "coupon-infamy" howlers, in this state, to go out with them, and lock them up where they ought to be.

THERE was a pleasant little gathering of young ladies and gentlemen at the residence of Mr. Geo. A. Ligon on Main street, on last Tuesday night. Dancing and pleasant chit-chat while the fleeting hours away till midnight, when the party dispersed, with one sentiment, that of a very enjoyable evening.

A Popular young gent of the city presented a certain charming young lady with an "old gold," colored kitten, the other day, for a pet. He's a fellow who never gets upon any sort of a cat-gory, but he knows how to show his tender feelings for the fair sex. He made this present for the purpose of getting a cat-gory, among us, suppose.
